LONG THE WAY TO MEETIN'.

cendered if the world so wide had heard my heart a-beatin', th Sally walkin' at my side along the way to meetin'?

esmed to time my every step-jest keepin' time accordin', sayin': "There's no rest fer you 'cept t'other side of Jordan!"

tried an 'tried to say "the word," with patientest endeavorword that might, or mightn't, make her heart my own forever; somehow, when it reached my lips it seemed too much to utter, th my poor heart a-keepin' up that everlastin' flutter!

mx shore my tribulation day-close by my side to view herspall the wild flowers by the way, an' then not give 'em to her! at sudden come this word from her 'twuz like a benediction:-

you're under deep conviction!" then, I up an' told her all my heart, so sore afflicted; leved her more than all the world-

that's how I stood convicted! then, as close she come to me, with sweeter looks an' fonder, read my shinin' titles clear to earthan over vonder! Adanta Constitution

FARMER DALE'S MISTAKE

WAS on a wheeling tour and stopped for supper and all night at a forlern-looking farmhouse. I was surprised to see no woman about, all the work being done by the owner of be place, Ezra Dale. After supper I ighted a pipe and sat on the porch moking. Dale came and sat beside

You have finished your evening hores early," I said. "When my wife s without a servant, she never gets he dishes washed before 9 o'clock." "Waal, ye see, I don't do it that way. I wash dishes oncet a week.

Then I put 'em all on ter the wagon, drive 'em inter the creek, take a mon, m' when I get through they shine like andy? She could do your mending." "Don't need no wife. I got needles m' thread an' buttons. There's my mining the articles mentioned and no

"Where's your thimble?" I asked. "Don't need no thimble. I tried one meet an' couldn't use it. It's handler git the head of the needle ag'in the tall and drive it through that a-way." "Did you never have a love affair?" "Yes, oncet. It was when I was a foung feller-very young an' very creen. I used to look on a gal as a leathen would look on a sacred imige. There was a little one livin' eross the creek, Farmer Owens' daughter Daisy. Purty? Ye bet, an' rentle as a kitten. She took a shine to me. I was a fair-lookin' young feller then, straight an' slim an' light on my feet. One evenin' I was a-passin' Farmer Owens', and Daisy come runnin' out with her finger a-bleedin' an' asked me ter tie it up fur her. I had gu her arm under mine somenov an' hold on ter her hand an' wrap the men strip an' wind the string an' a lot of things all at the same time. While was a-doin' of it her hair got ag'in my cheek, an'-waal. I lost my head an', turnin', put an arm around her an' klased her.

"Do ye know, stranger, I've since made up my mind she done it all a-purpose. I b'lieve she cut her finger ontentionally. I tell ye, women folks is tricky."

"I think that was a very nice feminine way of catching your attention." I remarked. "Go on."

"That's jist what I did do. I went on from day ter day, week ter week, till it seemed ter me if anything happened between me an' that gal I'd collapse. Somethin' did happen. Farmer Owens tuk a farm han' fur the hayin', an' what did Dalsy do but take him out in her buggy that her father bought fur ber at Christmas an' drive right by that house ... purpose ter show him off ter tell ye, stranger, she had the wicke lest eye in her ye ever see." "Another feminine trait," I observed.

"Miss Daisy was evidently a woman." "She was a woman, stranger, an' the worst kind of a one." Dale went on lugubriously. "She broke me all up. I list rented this farm ap' went away. I didn't come back fur ten years. Then I made up my mind that women folks wasn't wuth worryin' about, an' I tuk my farm ag'in an' began ter work it. The fust time I went by Farmer Owens' Daisy come out-she had grown ter be a fine-lookin' young woman of 26-an' what do ye suppose she did?"

"I can't imagine."

"Asked me if I wouln't tie up a cut finger. She had the same wicked look in her eye she had when she drove that lopsided farm han' by my house ten years afore. Women is the persistenest critters I ever see. I jist squared off an' said: 'Ye don't git me that a-way ag'in. Ye done it oncet, an' that's enough.' But, do ye know, stranger, she was so slick about it that in five minutes I had my arm about her an' she was a-restin' her head on my shoulder. She was a-cryin', too-cryin' crockerdile tears, no doubt.

"Waal, we was engaged, but it didn't las' long. The question come up as ter whether we'd be married by a justice or a parson. I don't like parsons myself, an' I wanted a justice. Daisy wanted a parson, an' she was so blame as obstinate about a small matter like old story book. Grant had what a that she'd be wantin' ter run the farm, great writer has called a "frictionless there is another side to the story,

THE GREAT LAKES FISHERIES ARE OF VAST IMPORTANCE

FIE conditions which surround, to be guided by an estimation of the the laws that govern, and the miles they were from shore, based on markets which deal with fishing the number of miles per hour which on inland bodies of water, are con- their fish tugs made. stantly the subject of many changes.

on that most important fishing ground, indorsed it.

Among the legislative measures ef-Many legislatures grapple with fish feeting the fishing interests of Lake and game problems during each win Erie during the last session of the Ohlo ter, and in the spring both pleasure. Legislature, was the Guerin bill. Acseekers and those who follow fishing cording to this bill the tonnage tax on as an industry must acquaint them fish was reduced from 75 cents to 50 selves with the new legislation if they cents. The same bill contained many are to avoid the clutches of the law. provisions looking toward a more strin-The Great Lakes furnish the world gent protection of Lake Erie fish, and with the greatest amount of fresh- it seems to have met with general approbation from the leading fishermen. Last season there was no patrol boat the Fish Culture Commission having

A LIFT OF TROUT AND WHITEFISH WEIGHING A TON.

Lake Erie. In fact it is not very long since there was considerable opposition of lower lake fisheries than those about to the plan to build and operate one Lake Huron, Lake Superior, St. Marys "Don't you think a wife would be Justice in this matter. It will be remembered that, while in the past the Canadian government constantly operated the tug Petrel in Lake Eric capturing the fishermen from across the water and confiscating their property when found slightly over in Canadian were over the middle line, they having going even to the ocean ports.

MICHIGAN STATE FISH HATCHERY.

on account of the expense in connec- River and the immediate vicinity of tion therewith. The spring found the the American and Canadian Soos. The new patrol boat built by the State of upper lake regions comprise a new Ohlo ready for service, and the Cana- country, and will be more to the fudian fishermen who have been tres- ture than they have been to the past. passing on the United States side of As a fishing ground, St. Marys River the line had to look out. Fishermen annually yields some handsome lifts. believe that they have at last received Whitefish and trout, when caught by net, have been known to yield a ton at a haul. Michigan is taking a decided interest in her fisheries. The Michigan hatchery is one of the finest in the country, and is situated so near the great canals as to be an object of considerable interest to tourists in that places in Michigan waters, annually trout, and 1,000,000 brook trout.

In general more is probably known

Of the five Great Lakes, Lake Eric ter. The Lake Eric fisheries employ in the neighborhood of 4,000 men. Fishing companies often operate fifteen to twenty tugs. These tugs or boats each to 500 pounds each. The nets are set from five to 25 or 30 miles out in the so I called the thing off, an' I've been livin' alone her ever since."

"Mr. Dale," I said, "you have mistaken natural feminine traits for general cussedness."

"That's what they is, I tell ye, stranger. Ye don't understand."

"You have declined to give up that which to a woman is a great deal, while to you it is nothing. Miss Owens was right to insist on being married by a parson, and you were ungenerous to refuse her. Now, let me give you a bit of advice. Miss Owens is still single? Yes. Well, go to her and tell her that when you first met her you were a blundering idiot and that later you were an obstinate brute. Say that if she will overlook your past errors you will spend your life in doing penance."

"Why, stranger, if I was ter do that I'd never have my own way about anything afterward."

"It is the only way to have your own way about everything with a woman. Toss it all into her hands, and she'll toss it right back to you. More than that, she'll expect you to lead, and if you don't lead she'll not respect you." "Ye don't mean it! Say, stranger, what sort of a makeup do ye call that anyway?" The next summer I rode past Farmer Dale's place. It was the trimmest-looking farm in the country. After supper the farmer told me how much better contented he was while Mrs. Dale was washing the dishes.-Indianapolis Sun.

VALUE OF SLEEP.

Ability to Rest One of Napoleon's Sources of Power.

One great secret of Napoleon's pow er was his ability to sleep. If he had but an hour for sleep he slept an hour, even though the fate of an army or of an empire hung in the balance while he slept. Gen. Grant was another great example of this ability to lay aside work at quitting time. Even in the Wilderness campaign, when the responsibility of the movements of the nation's armies, stretched out in battle line a thousand miles long, lay on his shoulders; when his good-night commands involved all-night marching and lighting of his army of the Potomac, and his waking orders might mean victory or defeat, the killing or the saving of a thousand men-under it all he lay down and dropped to sound sleep as quickly as you or I when we read ourselves sleepy over an

mind." He saved for the wear of work

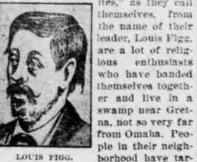

Here is a sample of the other extreme. Said a Minneapolis lawyer to me to-day: "When I began the practice of law I always lost two nights before I had a case in court, tossing about and combating every thinkable standpoint of my opponent. And I lost as much sleep afterward upbraiding myself for not having thought of certain points at certain pat occasions in the progress of the case." Of what value were these night thoughts to this young attorney? About as much value as night sweats to a consumptive! I venture to say that all the business planning a man does in life while lying on his back at night isn't worth an hour's good thinking on his feet on one June morning. As compared with the sleep it displaces, such night thinking isn't worth forty winks after dinner. Burning the candle at both ends sometimes makes a fine bonfire. But it always makes a bad grease spot of a good candle.-Commercial West.

A Palatial Log Cabin. On Warren's Island, off the coast of Maine, is being erected what is properly described as "a palatial log cabin." It is composed of spruce logs, and cost the tidy little sum of $75,000. The entire island on which this summer palace is erected was purchased by the late William H. Folwell, of Philadelphia. Mr. Folwell died before the completion of the house. The work is now superintended by his son, William H. Folwell, Jr. Some idea of the size of the "cabin" may be gained from consideration of the fact that there are twenty-two sleeping rooms on the second floor.

The Serious-Minded Jap. A Japanese review recently invited its readers to name those European authors whose works they more especially appreciated. The following has been the result of the referendum, the authors coming out of the voting in the following order: Darwin, Herbert Spencer, Schopenhauer, Goethe and Tolstoi.-London Globe.

A man is well enough trained by his wife if he passes the breast of the chicken to the preacher, and looks pleasant with the backbone on his own plate.

The "Figgites" an Addition to the Various "Holiness" Societies. Nebraska has added another to the various "holiness" societies with which the land is already overrun. The "Figgites," as they cail ple in their neighborbood have tarred and feathered the leaders, have threatened worse things, and have hauled them into court time and again with little result, except divorces. The Figgites say the Holy Ghost watches over them and tells them what to do and assert that the whole world is not able to turn them from what they regard as their plain duty. They consider themselves to be the chosen of the Lord, and condemn all other persons and sects to everlasting damnation. In spite of the fact that the law is continually after them, the society is growing and may soon be compelled to seek larger quarters. They do absolutely nothing unless directed by the "voice," and consider themselves

as being the very acme of perfection. The Figgs lived at Gretna some years ago, and had money and a good home. What started them on this fanatically religious turn is not exactly known, but it is a fact that suddenly both Figg and his wife showed signs of the "spirit" and their house became the rendezvous of many impressionable women who developed into enthusiasts as great as the Figgs themselves. There were people in Gretna, however, who did not think much of their doings, and booted them out. A couple of years ago there was considerable whitecapping and after a dose of tar and feathers Figg gathered up his female adherents and fled to a swamp, where he built a rough shack, in which the crowd still lives. Strange to say, there are still found women enough to keep the colony in a state of healthy growth. They leave good homes to go with Figg to his miserable shanty, which contains but four rooms, two below and two upstairs, where they sing and shout and conduct their fanatical ceremonies with less regard for the proprieties than is called for in a strict interpretation of the section. This hatchery, it is said, rules of law and order. These four rooms are crowded always, no men be-30,000,000 white fish, 1,500,000 lake ing among the enthusiasts except Figg and his two grown sons.

The first principle of the Figg religfurnishes the world with more fresh ion is regeneration by the Holy Ghost. water fish than any other body of wa- When that is accomplished, the whole life of the devotee hangs on the "voice." The "voice," which is supposed to come from the Holy Spirit, directs every move of their daily lives, and whatever set many nets with a capacity of 400 the "voice" directs them to do, is done without question.

The Figgites believe that all creeds lake. The value of each net is $5. At and forms of worship are wrong, as waters, the Canadian fishermen could the wharfs fish are removed from the well as any set way of meeting. They not be thus watched. It will also be tug decks to the packing houses in have a way of working themselves into recalled that American fishermen could boxes. Here they are prepared for a high state of excitement, when the not accurately determine when they shipment to distant points, they often "voice" will command one of their number to go and stir up a meeting beis usually something doing of very warm character when the fanatic what others throw away on the tear shows up and begins to denounce the congregation.

NEW LOGGING METHODS.

Steam and Electric Machines Used to Haul Logs in Maine Forests.

A few years ago, when some one suggested an electric railway from Moose head lake up the valley of the Alle gash river, in the very heart of the northern Maine woods, the project was ridiculed on every hand as impossible of execution in such a rough country, even if there would be any business for the road when it should have been constructed. Now, however, a trolley system is in successful operation in the Dead river region in the roughest part | pride that is worthy and no delicacy of Somerset County and is engaged in hauling heavy loads of spruce logs-a greater burden than any ordinary electric line has to carry, writes a Bangor correspondent of the New York Trib

The electric log-hauler is the invention of A. O. Lombard, of Waterville who is a mechanical genius and has made a fortune from various inventions in the last ten years. Some years ago Mr. Lombard conceived the idea of building a steam log-hauler and made a careful investigation of the subject before he began work upon the machine that he had in mind. He found that more than fifty years ago a Maine man had built a steam log-hauler, but that it had failed to work on account of some manifest faults in its construction. This first steam log-hauler had a boller and engine mounted upon a set of driving wheels five feet in diameter. with spikes in the rims of the wheels to prevent them from slipping, but when the machine was hitched to a load of logs the bearing of weight was on so small a portion of the rims that the wheels whirred around like those of a locomotive on a wet rail, while the spikes would dig so deeply into the snow that the machine would become stalled in hollows of its own making and be unable to move its own weight, not to speak of a load of logs.

To obviate this difficulty Mr. Lombard provided his machine with a sort of self-laying rail—a set of endless lags, carried on ball bearings-which, while preventing the wheels from digging into the snow, affords them a friction hold, giving traction power sufficient to draw loads of logs aggregating 60,000 feet. The forward end of the No one likes to be reminded that hauler is carried by a sled, to which is attached a pole. A pair of horses is day.

guide the machine, but the horses do no hauling.

COUNTESS IN MISFORTUNE.

Financial Reverses of Lady Dudley, a

Noted English Beauty. Reckless extravagance, which an income of $500,000 a year could not satisfy, has led to the financial ruin of Georgiana, Countess of Dudley, who for a score of years has been considered one of England's most beautiful women. Lady Dudley has sold her magnificent home in London, which cost nearly $200,000 to decorate, to J.

Pierpont Morgan, and only a short time since was compelled to dispose of her famous jewels, they bringing $450,000 at auction. Her husband, the late Earl of Dudley, who was insane, had a passion for beautiful jewelry, and at one time he had one of the finest collections of precious stones in the world. He was immensely wealthy, his income being about $2,000,000 a year. His son, the present earl, fell heir to this vast estate, but squandered much of it in extravagant living.

Lady Dudley had been a leader in London's exclusive society for many years, and there were many brilliant social functions at her home. When her son married, her income of $500,000 was cut down to a tenth of that sum, not nearly enough to maintain her in the way she was accustomed to live. At one time it was said that she was engaged to marry Dr. Jameson, and there is no doubt that the late Cecll Rhodes once was a sultor for her hand.

GEORGIANA, COUNTESS OF DUDLEY.

THAT WORD "LOAFER."

Question as to the Derivation Becom ing Acute in London. The question as to the derivation of that word "loafer," which Mr. Rhodes will is likely to elevate from the slang dictionary, is already getting acute, says the London Chronicle. Despite "Notes and Queries," and the derivation, through Hans Breitmann, from "that lofer (lover) of yours always hanging around here," the word is Spanish, and, like galoot and others, came from Mexico, through Texas to the States. It is the Anglicized or Americanized form of galloferro, "an idle, lazy vagabond," passing, as any ing held in some church near by. There student of Bartlett knows, through glofero, and glofer, to lofer, and ending up with the pretense of having something English or American about it, as "loafer," a man who has no casual connection with the loaf he does not earn. Of the loafer, Josh Billings has given in his "Alminax" a description which would have gone to Cecil Rhodes' heart, as of the type of man who was not to inherit Dalham, or any other property that was his, if he could help it: "The loafer is a thing who is willing to be despised for the privilege of abusing others. He occupies all grades in soclety, from the judge on the bench clear down to the ragged creature who leans against lamp posts and fights flies in August. He has no with not more than four years impris-

Most men who pass a fresh paint sign, touch the paint to see if it is still fresh, and if some one has not care-

OLD FAVORITES

On the Shores of Tennessee. Move my armchair, faithful Pompey, In the sunshine, bright and strong, For this world is fading, Pempey-Massa won't be with you long; And I fain would hear the south wind Bring once more the sound to me Of the wavelets softly breaking On the shores of Tennessee.

Mournful though the ripples murmur As they still the story tell, How no vessels float the banner That I've loved so long and well; shall listen to their music. Dreaming that again I see Stars and Stripes on sloop and shallop Sailing up the Tennessee.

And, Pompey, while old massa's waiting For Death's last dispatch to come. If that exiled starry banner Should come proudly sailing home, You shall greet it, slave no longer; Voice and hand shall both be free That shout and point to Union colors On the waves of Tennessee."

'Massa's berry kind to Pompey, But ole darkey's happy here, Where he's tended corn and cotton For desc many a long-gone year, Over yonder missis' sleeping-No one tends her grave like me; Mebbe she would miss the flowers She used to love in Tennessee.

'Pears like she was watching massa; If Pompey should beside him stay Mebbe she'd remember better How for him she used to pray-Telling him that 'way up yonder White as snow his soul would be Rausomed by the Lord of heaven, Out of life in Tennessee."

Silently the tears were rolling Down the poor old dusky face, As he stepped behind his master. In his long-accustomed place, Then a silence fell around them As they gazed on rock and tree, Pictured in the placid waters Of the rolling Tennessee, Master dreaming of the battle. Where he fought by Marion's side, Where he bid the haughty Tarleton Stoop his lordly crest of pride: Man remembering how you sleeper Once he held upon his knee, Ere she loved the gallant soldier, Ralph Vervain, of Tennessee,

Still the south wind fondly lingers 'Mid the veteran's silver hair; Still the bondman, close beside him, Stands behind the old armchair; With his dark-hued hand uplifted Shading eyes, he bends to see Where the woodland, boldly jutting Turns aside the Tennessee.

Thus he watches: cloud-born shadows Glide from tree to mountain crest; Softly creeping, aye and eyer, To the river's yielding breast, Ha! above the foliage yonder Something flutters wild and free! Massa! Massa! Hallelujah! The flag's come back to Tennessee!

Pompey, hold me on your shoulder, Help me stand on foot once more, That I may salute the colors As they pass my cabin door; Here's the paper signed that frees you-Give a freeman's shout with me! God and Union" be our watchword Evermore in Tennessee!"

Then the trembling voice grew fainter And the limbs refused to stand; One prayer to Jesus-and the soldier Glided to that better land. When the flag went down the river Man and master both were free. While the ring-dove's note was mingled With the rippling Tennessee. Ethelinda E. Beers.

All the News in the Head,

"I suppose our western country has furnished more funny things in the epitaph line than all the rest of the world," remarked ex-Congressman Lafe Pence of Colorado at the Riggs House.

"I remember one that adorned the cemetery at Leadville in the palmy days of that great mining camp. It seems that in the course of a barroom broil one Jim O'Brien, a wellknown character, had his existence terminated prematurely. He was a good fellow in the main and not without friends. One of the dead man's assoclates, in deep grief over his demise, erected a wooden slab over his grave on which he had written in large let-

"'Jim O'Brien departed for heaven at 9:30 a. m.'

"A local humorist happened along soon afterward and appended the following:

"Heaven, 4:20 p. m., O'Brien not yet arrived. Intense excitement. worst is feared.' "-Washington Post.

Pet Words in Literature.

There are pet words in literaturewords which become the fashion for a time and then take rank again in obscurity. Thus in the eighteenth century we find such words as "vastly," "hugely." "the quality." "genteel." etc. "Elegant" still lingers conspicuously in America and in England at the present time especial favor seems to be shown to "convincing," "weird" and "strenu-

The Camera in Business.

The camera promises to become as indispensable in business affairs as the typewriter. It is now being used in the reproduction of documents, statistical tables and others papers whose duplication by hand would be laborious and expensive.

It can usually be depended upon that lessly left the sign hang since yestera man who is long on hair is short on something else.